At the initiative of the Jetisy jastary institution, students of Zhetysu University took part in a meeting with employees of the Zhetisu Regional Police Department within the framework of the Cyber Volunteer project.

□ The purpose of the event is to form a culture of safe online behavior among young people, popularize cybercrime prevention measures and increase digital literacy in the field of cybersecurity.

The meeting was attended by Deputy Head of the Department for Combating Cybercrime of the Police Department, Police Captain Serik Demeyov, Head of the 1st Department of the Regional Prosecutor's Office Alisher Barayev and Senior assistant to the regional prosecutor Toleugali Sarsembayev.

The experts told the students in detail about the emergence of new types of online fraud, demonstrated their work patterns and gave specific examples.

"The attackers send fake documents about traffic violations to e-mail and messengers. They indicate the personal data of the drivers, the state license plates of the cars and a link to the "payment of the fine." In fact, this is a phishing attack — it is absolutely impossible to follow the link," the experts emphasized.

The police officers also warned the youth about the droppers and answered their questions. The students noted that in case of encountering fraudulent actions, it is necessary to contact law enforcement agencies.

In order to exchange experience in the field of science and education, within the framework of the grant financing project «Improving the training of future physics teachers to work in an information educational environment» (IRN project AP22683901), A. Abdulayeva and Candidate of Pedagogical Sciences N. Zhanatbekova took part in a scientific seminar on the topic «Improving the training of future teachers of physics and mathematics in universities: integration of theory and practice». The seminar was held on the basis of the Kyrgyz State University named after I. Arabayev (Bishkek). During the seminar, the issues of using modern technologies in the educational process, including the use of digital platforms and virtual laboratories, were considered. The seminar participants noted the need for students to develop critical thinking and independent work skills, which contributes to deeper preparation for future professional activities.

As part of the Science Decade, the Faculty of Physics and Mathematics hosted a commemorative evening under the theme «Scientist – Science – Life».

During the event, attendees were introduced to the biographies, scientific achievements, and contributions of scholars who had dedicated many years of service to the Faculty of Physics and Mathematics.

Additionally, participants had the opportunity to learn about the scientific legacy of natural scientist Magripa Zhilkybayeva, who devoted 30 years to studying the inscriptions of the Golden Man discovered in the Issyk burial mound. Through the application of physico-mathematical methods, she succeeded in unlocking the secrets of these ancient writings.

The event proved to be engaging and meaningful for all participants.

The life paths and works of scientists serve as guiding lights, inspiring us to comprehend the noble ideals of science and strive toward new discoveries and scientific achievements. Their pursuit of truth and perseverance remain a powerful source of inspiration for current and future generations.
